

BOOK ORDER FORM

RESPONSIBILITY TO PROTECT: WHERE DO WE STAND TEN YEARS AFTER?

Editor: Dr Vasilka Sancin

The Responsibility to Protect: Where Do We Stand Ten Years After? Book examines how R2P could be deployed, expanded, and even re-imagined, in order to achieve a world free of mass atrocities. It is intended to broaden debates and legal arguments concerning historic developments and the nature, role and potentials of R2P itself in a multidisciplinary debate reflecting diverse perspectives and thus genuine disagreements on the central theme of the book. Divided in five chapters the book evolves from predominantly doctrinal oriented contributions towards illustrations of concrete examples of (non)operationalization of R2P in practice.

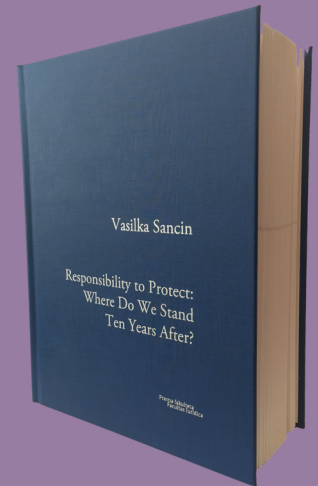

The forward to the book was written by Dr Jennifer Welsh, the Special Adviser to the UN Secretary General on the Responsibility to Protect, which recognized the book as an important contribution "by suggesting where those committed to advancing the collective responsibility to protect populations should focus their energies over the next decade, and beyond."

Contents:

- Part I: R2P After 10 Years: Potentials and Limitations
- Part II: R2P Implementation in Europe
- Part III: R2P and Syria
- Part IV: R2P and Africa
- Part V: Chinese Notion of Responsible Protection

Contributors:

Aidan Hehir, Olivier Ribbelink, Stacey Henderson, Don Wallace, Marina Žagar, Marko Rakovec, Tor Dahl-Eriksen, Tatjana Milić, Serena Timmoneri, Vladimir Kotlyar, Tomasz A. Lewandowski, Mia Swart, Daniel Silander, Birthe Thykier Moller, Swikani Ncube, Maruša Veber, Spencer Zifcak, Jeffrey J. Smith, Philipp Janig, Pak K. Lee, John Gaudette.

Price: 48,00 EUR
(including VAT)
+ shipping costs

Format: Hardback
Publisher: Faculty of Law,
University of Ljubljana
Published: April 2015
Pages: 484

Name and Surname/ Institution _____

Address _____

Postal Code and Name _____

VAT Number _____ E-mail Address _____

Telephone _____ Date and Signature _____

Please send the order form to: knjigarna.pravna@gmail.com